Bigler says Donglas was as deep in the mud as he, (Bigler,) Toombs and the rest were in the mire. And there is no rational doubt of his guitt. He may have been cunning enough not to give his formal consent to the plot as described by Bigler, but that he knew of and approved the general plan for tereing a Pro-Slavery Coastitution upon the people without a vote, is beyond question. Bigler's revelations on this head are suggestive and important.

upposed Murder—Mistakes Identity—Perjury of a Witness—Mysterious Reappearance of the Sup-posed Murdered Person.

New Haven, Dec. 18.

It will be remembered that last winter a boy named Charles E. Sage, about 19 years of age, was missing from his home in Cromwell, near Middletown, in this State, and that an Irishman Middletown, in this State, and that an Irishman hamed Patrick Nugentwas arrested on a charge of murdering the had and putting the body under the ice in the Connecticut river. In a few months afterwards, a body was found in the river without a head. This body was believed to be that of the missing boy, from several marks upon it as well as a portion of the clothing. Soon afterwards the lining of an overcout was found answering to the description of that worn by the missing person.

Some months elapsed, when a sailor, named Benson, came to Cromwell, and directly charged Nugent, the Irishman, with the murder. He said he saw the deed done, and assisted Nugent in putting the corpse under a hay-charged Nugent, the Irishman, with the marder. He said he saw the deed done, and assisted Nugent in putting the corpse under a haymow. He described accurately the lad's appearance—his dress, the color of his hair, do—and declared that he had not had any peace of mind since the murder, and that he had cone to Cromwell expressly to divulge all he knew about it. He confronted Nugent, and charged the deed upon him. The accused denied it, but trembled from head to foot. A Grand Jury found a true bill against Nugent, whose time of trial was fixed for the present month.

Thus matters have rested until recently, when the cousin of the missing boy, living in Ithaca, N. Y., received an anonynous letter from the interior of Pennsylvania, which he showed to his father, a Mr. Williams. The letter was answered, when another letter was received from Pennsylvania, signed Wm. Russell, which Mr. Williams himself answered. He at the same time addressed the Postmaster requesting him to watch for the person who called for the letter, and describe him. The Postmaster did so, when Mr. Williams immediately left thaca for Pennsylvania, found Russell, whom he discovered to be his nephew, Charles E. Sage, the identical missing boy!

A special Court is held at Hastam to-day, when Nugent will be liberated.

John A. Benson, the asilor who testified that he saw the murder of Charles E. Sage, of Cromwell, has been arrested on a charge of perjury, with intent to take life, and has acknowledged his guilt. The crime will cend him to the States Prison for life. There are no further developments.

The weekly bank average shows a generic explansion, with the exception of circulation which is slightly reduced. The Increase I loans is not large, and would probably have been larger if strictly first class paper had been more freely offered for discount. A portion of the Increase in loans has been made to Southern and Western banks, and drawn for in special strengthen these institutions for their an nual statement. The special reserve shows a increase of nearly two millions of dellars, and sait is a right gaverage, the actual amount in we have lost about a million by foreign drais and some last a million to Southers and Western banks, which will return to us early in January. The circulation has not changed materially. In undrawn deposits there is an increase of about eight hundred thousand dollars, partly the result of the concentrating here of funds for the payment of dividends interest, &x., on the lst prox. TYROLESE FAMILY CONCERT, at Ledwig's Exlar and catalogue of this institution, which is the oldest in the Northwest, has just been laid upon our table, by Messrs. Bell. & Sloan. The College was incorporated by an act of the Legislature of this State in 1858, and has since achieved a prominic, proportionate to the importance of securing a sound and practical culture and training as indi-pensable to commercial success. Thousands of our successful merchants and bankers look back with high appreciation, to the hours they passed in training in Commercial Colleges. Of these, the in-stitution of Bell & Sloan justly claims a large and honorable share. Their new rooms in the Portland tem of perectical business education will still be maintained as heretofore. The Missourians assembled a strong force on the border, and more fighting is apprehended. The difficulties grew out of Clark, notorious as the murderer of Barbour, two years since, going about, accompanied by a Deputy Sheriff, ordicting taxes of Free State men, seicing property in default of payment and making prosecutions under the rebellion law.

Cen. Cas. Letter to Cen. Derver.

New York, Dec. 24.—Secretary Cass' letter of instructions to Gen. Denver, the new Secretary and Acting Governor of Kansas, is published this morning. It severely animadverts upon the action of Secretary Stanton, in assembling the Legislature, as throwing a new element of discord among the excited people of Kansas, and details the means at his disposal for suppressing all attempts at disturbance. The Legislature is to be protected in its deliberations, although no action it may see fit to take, in the opinion of the Administration, can interfere with the election provided for by the Constitutional Convention.

The Democracy of the city met last evening in Tammany Hall to the number of 1,000 or more, and endorsed the President's Message. Hon. John Yan Buren reviewed in terms of censure the recent conduct of the Little Giant on the Lecompton embroilio. Speeches were also made by Hon. Richard Busteed, Gen. Waltridge and others. There was considerable disturbance at the commencement of the meeting, by some indiscreet friends of Mayor Wood, who were intent on breaking up the meeting, but, were overruled in their intentions.

Friday Morning ................. Dec. 25, 1807 A Merry Christmas to our Bend

We hail another advent of this glorious mys tery-this holiest of the Festivals of Christiani inbrances of youthful joys and the grand-om ises of manbood. It mirrors the pulpie es—the maddlest, merriest gambols childhood; and points the infinite rewards of a life of truth. To no festival, Christian or pages, has the human heart ever leaned forward with such reverent love; to no scene gives the fancy a purer and a brighter glow. The intellect is proud to bow to the miracle that intellect is proud to how to the miracle that cludes it. The heart is happy to enfold the bright story that perifies and supports it. From the hoar that the morning stars paled before the presence of the angels on the Judean hills, there has lingered about Christmas—in every thought, act and memory of it—the burden of the heavenly carol that tranced the Jewish That music will chime forever-a bend of immortal song—recording the history of God's love and man's redemption. Davis, Toombs and Hunter may be cited as exemplars of the pure black type; but the half-breeds who dwell on the borders of political Zion, are becoming numerous and troublesome. They are lighter in complexion, and are called yellow men. Douglas is chief of these yellow Democrats. The blacks hate them at heart as badly as they do the white men, who are Republicans. Just now our whole national politics farn upon the intestinal struggle between the Blacks and the Yellows. It is the intention of the Blacks, if they overthrow the Yellows to subdue the White men. They have at present a great advantage, because a pure Black holds the purse and the sword belonging to the White men. a prey to the flames. There were many rumors affort a to the origin of the fire; but, after a lengthened investigation of all the facts of the case, public opinson in the neighborhood settled down with the conviction that it was the result of incendiarism, and that Owen McNally a coal diagrer, who ree ded in the vicinity, was the incendiary. There were many reasons addeed for supposing McNally to be the guilty party. He had been heard to make repeated threats to burn the building, because of some ill-treatment which his father, as contractor for the edifice, had received at the hands of the Trustoes, and it was even said that on his death bed, the latter had the former swear that, come what might, he would burn the structure.

Immediately after the fire, McNally was missed from Bethany, and as the belief in his guilt was quite prevalent, and it was known that his mother resided in Allegheny City, five of the students, named Smith, Caspar, Donaphan, Rogers and Moore, volunteered to come uphere in pursuit of the fugitive. They arrived in Allegheny yesterday, and on visiting Mayor Dehaven's office they assertained that Mrs. McNally lived on Water alley, near the Post Office. Thither they repaired, in company with officers Scott and Calboun, of the Mayor's police. The officers entered the house, but their Virginia friends seemed reluctant to follow.

It is contemplated to call he new county, Osborn, after the President of the Illiness Central Railroad, who owns some twelve or Been thousand acres on the line of the Peeria and officers Scott and Calboun, of the Mayor's po-lice. The officers entered the house, but their Virginia friends seemed reluctant to follow As neither of the officers knew McNally, they naturally looked for some one of the party to point him out, as there were two men in the house. While they returned to the door to bring in a man to identify McNally, he darted off through the rear entrance, and dording his escape.

The Virginians, so timid a moment before

The virginians, so time a memory teach, were now fired with courage, and, drawing their revolvers, created the greatest excitement by their dangerous display of the weapons and the violence of their language. Their confarmers of the county have had preliminary meetings, and intend packing an forwarding their own hogs by the same route. This does away with the commission merchant, the middle man, who, always a burden, in hard times like these an intoiand the violence of their language. Their conduct drew an immense crowd around them and, but that they chose to put up their pistols and assume a more peaceful attitude, there is no telling fo what amount of violence they might not have been subjected. As it was, both the officers and Virginians were prevented from pursaing MeNally, by the crowd which pressed around them, and the fellow, in consequence, was enabled to make good his escape. The whole affair was badly managed from the first, though we have no reason to blame the officers in the matter at all. Had the Virginians followed them like men, instead of quibbling and quarreiling with each other like school boys, there is not a doubt but that MeNally would now be in custody. low be in custody.

As we surmised and stated at the time, the reported death of General Lane turns out to be altogether untrue, as he was at Doniphan on Friday last. The mistake, in all probability, occurred from confounding the name of Latham, the man killed at Doniphan, with that of Lane. The trouble at Fort Scott, which is said to have resulted in the death of three men, was a local quarrel, not connected immediately with the election, although between Free State and Pro-Shavery men. The latter find sent to Missouri for assistance. A requisition was made on Friday by Stanton on Gen. Harney for two companies of dragoons, who were at once dispatched to the spot. Gen. A company of fifteen armed ruffians from Atchron, have just left this city, after having nurdered in the public streets, with a shot gun Mr. Latham, a free State citizen of Doniphia. These men came in, in parties of two, about one o'clock this afternoon, and after consulting together, one of them, named McVeay, shot at Mr. Latham, and mortally wounded him, as he was peacefully walking.

The death of Mr. Latham at Doniphan is confirmed by Mr. Gaily, a passenger from that place, who informs us that he was but a few feet from Mr. L. when he was shot. He was fired at from behind, and was killed without having had any warning from his assassins, or any knowledge of who they were.—(En. Dru.

The Cost of the Lecompton Constitution If the people of the South knew the loyalt and devotion of the Democracy of the North west to the Constitution, the Union, and thrights of the State, they would not attempt to rights of the State, they would not attempt to force the Lecompton Constitution through Congress. To us it seems that it is the disantention of the South that asks propitiation; and there is a fable which Northern Congressmen should remember. The monarch of the forest once shammed sixthness, and sent for all the other animals to visit him. The ass, loyal beast, set up a sonorous bray of sympathy, and cantered off in hot haste to do his devoir, the first of all. About the last came Reynard, very much at his leisure; and when he neared the mouth of the Lion's den, instead of rushing in he began to pry about him. The skeletons and dry hones scattered in the neighborhood, excited his attention, and he thought there were in mate circumstance; that though there were in ien, there were none of any coming out, a those of the lion himself! [Freia us Lordon Times, Dec. 8.]

The intelligence received last night at the Foreign Office, from the seat of hostilities in Britist India, may be summed up in a few words. The beleaguered garrison of Lucknow was still holding out. Two conveys of provisions had been conducted safely to that place. Sir Colin Campbell himself had left Calentta, in order to preside over the operations in person, and all the available British troops were being moved up with all possible dispatch. This intelligence covers the state of facts until the end of October, and doubtless in speculating on the events we are treating of a foregone conclusion. Before this dipatch had reached us Lucknow had either fallen, or it had been relieved. It was not in the nature of things that the siege should be pretracted indefinitely, ics even disciplined Asiatics—the case is widely different. In the despatch that we have received it is mentioned that according to general report the Indians had with them some three hundred guns. The number is no doubt dements of the like kind, which, how-idable in appearance, would not, in bility, add materially to the difficulties all probability, add materially to the difficulties of the besieged force. Still, when all due deductions are made, it is very likely that the rebels had with them a very numerous and powerful artillery. The fact being so, we can afford to look it boldly in the face, for it is not within our experience that an Indian force, unguised by Europeans and unassisted by European combatants, could manage to carry such a business as the storming of Delhi to a successful issue. Now, there can be no reason to doubt that the resistance offered by our countrymen in Lucknow will have been as desperate as any re-orded in the military annals of any nation. Not only in their case can we depend upon the warlike ability of their chief, but we know that there is not a man among them who is not fully aware that the option is between defence to the last and death in the most cruel form at the hands of the rebels if they are con-

On the whole, there seems little reason to doubt that if their provisions hold out, the gurrison of Lucknow will be able to maintain their position until the arrival of relief. There was no complaint of any want of arms, amminition, or any of the moleriel of war. The question was simply one of food. We cannot, nafortunately, add one word of explanation to the brief announcement of the telegraph, that two convoys of provisions had reached the town in safety. It would only seem probable that had these convoys been inconsiderable or unimportant, the intelligence of their arrival would not have been transmitted from the other side of the globe. But if they be of sufficient magnitude, as seems probable, to have afforded substantial relief to the besieged, it follows that they cannot be so straitened by the hostile languager as to render resistance at all a that they cannot be so straitened by the hos-tile longuer as to render resistance at all a hopeless one. The last days of a besieged gar-rison can scarcely have arrived when two large convoys are safely passed through the besieg-ing force. We may add to these ascertained facts and to this reasoning upon ascertained facts, that time was working heavily in favor of the besieged and the prejudice of the besieg-ers. The despersic character of the mutiny and the conviction of its ultimate and speedy failure must have occurred very forcibly to the

There are different ways of finding out that we are growing old. One is the looking-glass another is the alteration in your absent friend since you last saw him; another is the enlargement of your library; another is the addition of new drawers for amendand or correspondence; another is the growth and accumulation of all sorts of rubbish about you that you don't know how to deal with, whether to bury or to burn; another is the lengthened list of past residences in the memory; another is change of opinions. All these tests do not apply to all persons, but some to one, and some to another. We will add another now to this list of tests of advancing years, and that is the progress of the United years, and that is the progress of the United States.

Those whose political recollections can stretch live and twenty years back can remember the idea or image of a country which the U. States then raised in everybody's mind. It was the image of a newly-discovered country, for two centuries seemed hardly to have made any inroad upon that vast continent of a country that had just feit the first passage of the plow, of primeval forests, a virgin soil, of cities just rising to the dignity and importance of commerce, and of illimitable, natified resources, which absorbed, the activity of fresh thousands every month, and allowed nobody to stand, idle for an hour. It was the image of a new world over which the sun rose and set without seeing want, of a world in its first spring-time and infancy, when Nature repaid a hundred fold the slightest attention, and had only to be asked in order to obtain from her the amplest non-ishment, of however rude and simple a kind, for everybody. This was one great contrast between the United States and England. Another was the immunity of this new world from the perplexities of diplomacy, the jealousless and rivalries, the sacroachments and the resistance to encroachments, involved in the Engancean subsets. from the perpiexities of diplomacy, the jealous-ies and rivairies, the encrosehments and the resistance to encrosehments, involved in the European sphere. In that new hemisphere war-was impossible, because there was no foe, and an army was unnecessary, because there was no war. Thus, at one stroke, on expense which swelled the budget of every nation of Europe to a most portentions size was cut off, and fax-ation did not rise above the lowest and sim-plest scale. Thus all was simple and all was primitive in the United States, soil, policy and fluance; there was nothing of the Old World about them; they exulted in the light atmo-sphere of national youth, and rejoiced in a com-plete freedom from the gorgeous but onerous trappings of the States of the Old World, their pomp, titles, ceremonics, ranks, diplomacy and pomp, titles, ceremonies, ranks, diplomacy saxes.

Such was the picture of the United States five-and-twenty years ago; but any one with moderate political observation will see that this picture is now considerably altered. The United States are not indeed, an old nation west, and the same state of the same time are same. ted States are not, indeed, an old nation yet, but there are signs of advuncing time pressing upon them. New York, was a month ago the scene of bread riots. That is a mark of age; a nation cannot call itself quite young that finds itself involved in a financial catastrophe, the effect of an extremely developed artificial currency, and the cause of bread riots. These are features of an Old World, of long-established commerce, of overgrown population. lished commerce, of overgrown population The City of New York may claim now the rank of one of those vast concentrations of huma power and activity, and concentrations of hu man life, which constitute the great cities of the Old World, and with the rank it exhibits the financial system.

We may now add another sign of advancing age—a war with an unruly dependency—a war accompanied by great hardships and involving endless marches over difficult and berranground, where the invading army must carry everything whatever necessary for human or brute life with it. Fort Leavenworth is about 1.500 miles from the American seat of Government; that is no short distance, but when an American army has reached Leavenworth its hostile journey to the Salt Lake City is only begun. Another journey of 650 miles up the Platic River conducts it to fort Laramie, and after reaching lucts it to fort Laramic, and after reachi-fort Laramie, a full mouth's journey succe-before the Salt Lake City is arrived at. Of the month's journey, the whole is over diffici before the Sait Lake City is arrived at. Of this month's journey the whole is over difficult country, and much of it over ground with very little grass, which, little as it is, the Meridons will, of course, ret fire to. The Mormons are perfectly aware of the advantage of their position, and meet the invasion with insolent defiance, and, it must be added, hithertq with successful defiance. The Amer'san advanced force under Colonel Albert Johnson having proceeded 250 miles beyond Fort Laramile is stopped by a seven-inch depth of snow, comone upon which any man may form his opinion, for there is no concealment of facts, nor any mystery about their import. Three thousand desparate and disciplised troops are, or were, fighting for their lives in the midst of a native army by all accounts some 30,000 or 40,000 strong. The advantage of position was on the side of the British, for although the works and buildings they occupied would have presented no very insurmountable difficulties to a besieging army of Europeans, it is well nigh superfluous to say that when the besiegers are Asiatios—even disciplined Asiatics—the case is or their own position among civilized nationave avoided it. No nation that is a mem have avoided it. No nation that is a member of the great circle of civilized nations, and forms a part of the established phalanx of civilization in the world, can escape the duty of defending the necessary laws of civilization. That cause is a macred and subline cause committed to its trust by Providence, and it cannot avoid the responsibility of it without giving up its place in the civilized world, and its fellowship in the association of civilized nations. But the honors of growing antiquity being lowship in the association of civilized nation But the honors of growing antiquity britheir responsibilities, encumbrances, perpleties, and grievances with them, jars and collions in the State, difficulties of finance, popul distress, wars, taxation. The crown of emph like the crown of reason, brings its cares wit, and sits heavily upon the brow. "It is a for a statesman," says Homer, "to rest all thingh—he must be wide awake while others all caping." Our transcriptic kingman are sleeping. Dur transatlantic kinsman are their private basiness, quite up to this dr and shey will now, in their national capac have more and more to exercise it. Dry Goods.
